Commentary

Sequestration will remain the dominant issue until it is resolved. Until then, while there will be short-term trades in both directions, it is impossible to accurately forecast the sector until this headwind is removed. Many companies continue to exhibit good fundamentals and cash on the balance sheet. Commercial aerospace will see strength as will C4ISR and cybersecurity. However, until the specifics, duration, timing, and impact of sequestration is known (and therefore the depth of the problem, what programs it will impact, and which companies will be impacted the hardest), this newsletter is essentially on hiatus until 4Q12. We will continue to provide statistics on the performance of the SPADE Defense Index and its constituents as well as the ETF that tracks it. However, until there is some clarity, providing a commentary and details/news on the direction of the defense sector that would be of interest to A&D investors really would be of little value.
